By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A seven-year-veteran of the Romulus Police Department has been fired following a police chief's hearing on a complaint filed by a woman motorist that the officer asked her to show him her genital area to avoid being arrested on a drug violation.

The policeman, Clayton Stevens III, was fired by Police Chief Daryl Poe on April 11, following the chief's hearing on May 4 of an incident that allegedly occurred on Valentine's Day.

According to police information, Stevens reportedly stopped a 29-year-old Taylor woman for a traffic violation and then placed her in his police car.

Then according to reports, Stevens reportedly found a quantity of marijuana and a knife in the woman's car. Police investigators said Stevens then reportedly offered the woman a deal in which if she exposed her genital area to him, he would not file the drug charge.

Reportedly the woman complied with his request, but later complained to Steven's superiors.

A knife reportedly was found in a street drain near where the woman said the incident occurred, police said, and a traffic ticket he had written for the woman also was located.

The chief's hearing was called following the allegations, Poe said. First Stevens was put on suspension with pay and finally terminated from his job on May 11.

Poe said Stevens has denied the charge made by the woman and has the right to appeal the job termination.

Poe revealed a check of Stevens' personnel file shows that he did earn one citation for aiding in the arrest of fire bomb suspects in 1992.

Mayor's mother eulogized

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Florence F. Atchison, mother of Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally, was eulogized Monday for having a lasting impact on both those she knew and those she never met.

The Rev. Brad Lewis, pastor of the Community United Methodist Church, revealed Mrs. Atchison obviously had a tremendous impact on her family members.

"She was the family historian and a classic story teller, who kept the faith. As a young mother she often walked two miles to church with her children, sang in the choir and was a member of the church's women's group," Lewis said.

"Florence, who was 94, grew up with a strong work ethic, which she passed on to her children.

"She also influenced many who never knew her while she was an employee of the Western Union," Lewis continued, "as she helped compose for many years the Easter Bunny and Santa-grams" that were popular in years gone by.

Mrs. Atchison, who was born on June 19, 1900 in Barnes, Kan., later moved to Michigan. She resided first in Brownstown Township and finally in Romulus.

Her husband, Paul, died in 1962.

In addition to the mayor, she is survived by a sister, Irene Harper, three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Her funeral was conducted at the Crane Funeral Home, where many of her political, social and senior citizen center friends turned out to mourn her passing last Friday morning.

A friendship time was offered later for family and friends at the center, where she was one of the top newsletter columnists in recent years offering the popular "Timely Tower Tidbits."

Burial was at Romulus Cemetery.

The family recommends that memorials be sent to the Community United Methodist Church, the Ball Road Tabernacle or the Community Baptist Church's Women's Club.

Cyclist is first '95 fatality

By AL POST

A 49-year-old Southgate motorcyclist became the first 1995 traffic fatality in Romulus, when his cycle was struck at Middlebelt and Charles Street on May 5.

The victim, Thomas Raymond Hettterscheidt, was taken first to Annapolis Hospital. Later he was flown to the University of Michigan Hospitals in Ann Arbor, where he died of closed head injuries three days later.

A motorist, Bridget Ann Saavedra of Melvindale, told police she was blocked from seeing the victim by a pickup truck, as she was about to turn from Charles Street into Middlebelt.

Romulus Traffic Officer Jerome Yoscovits said the victim, who was driving south on Middlebelt, flew about 40-50 feet in the air after the collision.

The victim, who was driving south on Middlebelt, flew about 40-50 feet in the air after the collision.

Saavedra was charged with negligent homicide.

Then last Saturday morning a 41-year-old Taylor man escaped serious injury when his 1983 AMC Alliance traveling south on Inkster Road was struck by a train south of Interstate-94.

The train containing an engine and 55 freight cars pushed the car about a quarter of a mile.

The driver, who faces possible drunk driving charges, was treated at Annapolis Hospital for minor injuries and released.

He reportedly told uniform police officers that he didn't see the train until it hit him.

Romulus man waits for artificial heart

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Charles Sprinkle believes he has broken a record.

Known to his family and friends as "Chuck," he has been flown to Pittsburgh after spending a record 61 days on a balloon style heart pump at Beaumont Hospital. The normal time on such a pump is only 30 days.

In sports, records are things to flaunt. But Sprinkle's record has a major negative side which shows a continual deterioration of his seriously damaged heart.

Once again like sports teams, being "No. 1" is usually an image to flaunt.

But for Sprinkle being "No. 1" has not carried the significance he hoped.

Because being "No. 1" in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana for a heart transplant unfortunately is not the final denominator when a heart transplant becomes available.

Thus Sprinkle openly feels a little short-changed when others are given the available hearts before him. He feels bad that his blood type and sugar condition, make him less eligible for heart donations than others younger and healthier.

Sprinkle, a Kentucky-native who has resided in Romulus for the past 18 years, is hoping at best that the new artificial heart he is to receive at Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh, will give him a second chance at life.

The device has been created only to assist patients, until they receive a real human heart.

At worst, he hopes to at least give the organ transplant cycle a tremendous jolt - one that will at least touch the heart strings of motorists and others to sign on to an organ transplant program.

It is important that the donor decide early that he or she agrees to such a transplant program, Sprinkle said, because many survivors feel organ transplants are desecrations of loved ones' bodies.

Sprinkle and his family members are proud that they have long been signed on to the organ donor program, even before the former General Motors employee had his first heart attack.

But for Sprinkle the average Michigan resident is not aware of the significance of such transplants.

"When you speak to them of organ transplants," he said, "it's like you are speaking about something from outer space."

The public does not realize that no one is immune from organ disease and that one donor can save or greatly improve numerous lives.

Laying in Beaumont Hospital for 61 days gave him time only to sit and think, watch TV and read the Romulus Roman, he said.

"It's impossible to describe the emotional impact such an experience has on a person," Sprinkle admitted.

During his healthier years, Sprinkle said he enjoyed hunting, fishing and camping with his family.

Currently thanks to the positive spirit of his wife, Pat, he has a strong desire to survive this ordeal.

His wife has to balance the role of a special Romulus school bus driver for the hearing impaired and that of a family leader.

Sprinkle hopes that his role will be advanced with a healthy heart.

"I want to be able to help Pat with the chores. And if God helps me get through this, I want to get involved with a church," Sprinkle vowed.

In his Beverly Road home, Sprinkle has a wall posted with portraits of his wife, children and grandchildren. All those pictured on the wall in unison hope for his physical revival.

Sprinkle shares that feeling, because he once again wants to fill the full role of husband, father and grandfather.

5 firefighters

Five Romulus volunteer firefighters were cited recently by Fire Chief William Greenslait upon their graduation from Firefighter I school.

The firefighters include: James Crova and Robert Hoth of Station 1, Chad Blackburn of Station 2 and Larry Baxter and Rhonda Kiesznowski of Station 4.

Greenslait also congratulated Sgt. Jerry Hollis on earning his Emergency Medical Technician Specialist license and Kiesznowski for receiving her EMT license.

The department also bade farewell to Keith Debruhl, who resigned as a local firefighter after 10 years of service. Debruhl has moved out of Romulus for job related reasons.

Local pastor

Superintendent James L. Whitehead Jr., pastor of Saint City Church of God In Christ, will be honored by his parishioners on May 28 on his 18th anniversary of service to the church.

The Rev. Rance Allen of Toledo, Ohio, will be the special guest speaker at the 3:30 p.m. celebration.

Elder Eddie Woods and Martha Taylor are coordinating the celebration arrangements.

Hunter safety

Members of the Romulus Police Department and attorney Brian A. Oakley have joined forces in organizing a group designed to provide outdoor safety instruction for area residents of all ages.

The hunter safety courses are planned for the weekends of June 17 and 18 and Sept. 16 and 17 at the local Veterans of Foreign Wars sites on Huron River Drive.

Applications will be available at Romulus Police Headquarters about 30 days prior to each course. The group also plans to eventually offer boating and off road vehicle classes.

Softball star

wins major honor

Jennifer Daniel, a Romulus senior centerfielder on the Wayne State University softball team, has been voted onto the 1995 All-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Softball Second Team.

Selection of team members were made by votes collected from conference head coaches recently.

This was Daniel's fourth year as starter in centerfield and the second year in a row to earn the above honor. In her sophomore year, she was named to the NCAA-II All-America Third Team and the All-GLIAC and the GLIAC All-Academic First Teams.

This year despite a sluggish start, Daniel finished with a .313 batting average in the conference season and her overall fielding average was .983, tops on her team.

She also collected 17 runs batted in and 15 runs scored.

Daniel also finished tied for third on the Tartars' career list for games played with 214.

Lower jail costs backed

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Western Wayne County communities are paying too much to house their prisoners in the county jail, according to members of the Conference of Western Wayne (CWW).

The daily cost for inmates housed at the Wayne County Hamtramck jail complex should be slashed from $55 to $30 for local police departments, the CWW urged last Friday morning.

Meeting at Romulus City Hall, the conference members, representing 18 Western Wayne County communities, unanimously supported an ordinance drawn up by Commissioner Bill O'Neil of Allen Park that would drastically cut the cost to local police departments that send prisoners to the jail facility.

O'Neil claimed the current jail cost is double that of other nearby county jails.

The Conference of Western Wayne recommendation has been sent to the Wayne County Commissioners for passage.

Incorporated into the ordinance is the responsibility of the County Sheriff's Department to pick up and deliver prisoners to and from the jail, O'Neil said.

Voters approved a millage in 1988 for the creation of such a jail, whose main function was to house misdemeanor prisoners, O'Neil said.

Specific commitments were made that 180 beds would be set aside for Detroit court prisoners and another 180 for suburban Wayne County inmates.

But in reality in recent years, O'Neil said the number of convicted Metro area felons incarcerated there has grown substantially to the point now were it reaches a rate of more than 80 percent.

O'Neil, in seeking grass roots support for the cost change, called his projected ordinance "a good ordinance that will benefit the citizens of the entire county."

O'Neil said the change has the support of the local police chiefs, even though it is not a perfect system.

Asked what will happen to the state felons currently housed in the Hamtramck facility if the ordinance is approved by the county, O'Neil said the state will have to find room for them in its prison system.

O'Neil said the county has to remain true to its citizens.

Demonstration slated

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

They are asking for fair wages, job security and affordable health insurance.

Negotiations are continuing between the SEIU Local 79 bargaining team of Oakwood Health Systems and Oakwood management. After nearly a year of discussions, a settlement has yet to be reached.

SEIU officials have been demonstrating at various Oakwood hospitals and on May 18 the target site is Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

Nicole Black, a clerical worker with Oakwood Health System, said she is frustrated that Oakwood isn't offering a fair agreement.

"All Oakwood wanted to give was one percent," said Black. "The average increase in the nation is 4.9 percent."

The most recent SEIU demonstration took place May 4 at the Heritage Hospital entrance. SEIU members came from every hospital in the Oakwood system including: Annapolis, Beyer, Heritage and Seaway, in addition to Central Laundry and Supply.

"After that demonstration, Oakwood considered going up to a 2-percent increase," said Black. "The Oakwood Health System has made a good profit within the last few years. I've worked for the organization for 17 years. The last time we negotiated we only got a 3-percent increase.

"This time, however, one of the big issues is health care."

Perhaps the most ironic aspect of the negotiations is that affordable health care insurance for all the SEIU workers is an issue, especially when the employees are working for a health organization.

"They are trying to reduce the health coverage," Black said. "Now we are forced to take Select Care or pay for our own. They are also trying to reduce our Select Care option. This is the worst I've ever seen it."

Besides clerical, other employees affected by the lack of a contract include those individuals in billing, collections and house keeping, according to Bob Lathrop, assistant to the president of the SEIU Local 79.

"This is affecting about 800 people," said Lathrop. "It includes all the hospitals within the Oakwood Health System except for the main one in Dearborn."

"Negotiations began in June of 1994. We've been talking a long time. The membership is getting a little frustrated. The first economic offer we got was in late March of this year."

Lathrop said all the Oakwood employees in the SEIU Local 79 want to work, but they also want a fair wage increase.

"We still haven't received a fair offer," said Lathrop. "Health care is probably one of the biggest issues. We're trying to get job security for the workers."

Lathrop said Oakwood appears to be leaning more and more toward hiring part-time workers instead of full-time.

"You can't raise a family on part-time," said Lathrop. "It also doesn't pay benefits. We think it's the wrong direction for Oakwood to go. We also think it's time to resolve these issues."

Oakwood officials would not directly speak to the Michigan Community Newspapers about the negotiations, however, they issued a press release from Carla O'Malley, senior vice president, acute care, of the Oakwood Healthcare System.

"Oakwood Healthcare System's pay philosophy is to provide wages and benefits competitive with the southeast Michigan market for similar size hospitals," O'Malley said.

Fun activities planned

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A hearty band of volunteers coordinated by city Recreation Department Director Brian Hitsky have been working diligently this past week to put together several weeks of festivities that will climax with the July 4th fireworks demonstration.

The hastily formed committee has been called together to make family fun arrangements following the sudden cancellation of the 1995 Romulus Festival. The series of programs will kick off with a "Books under the Big Top" event on June 22 at the Romulus Public Library, Hitsky said.

The following day will be the Mayor's Annual Drug Task Force Golf Outing at Shady Hollow Golf Course.

Then on June 26 Franzen Brothers Circus will come to Romulus and offer two shows at 4:30 and 7 p.m.

On July 1, Hitsky said a woman's softball tournament including 8-10 teams will begin at 9 a.m. at Elmer Johnson Park.

During the day dedication ceremonies will be conducted at both the Beverly Tot Lot and the Cordell Park play area.

Then at 7:30 p.m. a music in the park program offered by the Allan Barnes Group will take place at Romulus Historic Park.

On July 2, the city will celebrate its 25th birthday at Romulus Historic Park, where Mayor Beverly McAnally and most of the past and present city officials will take part.

Birthday cakes reportedly will be baked by local senior citizens.

Finally on July 4th, a prayer ceremony will be offered at 8:30 a.m. at Elmer Johnson Park, followed by a Romulus Kiwanis Club Pancake Breakfast.

A men's softball tournament will begin at 10 a.m. and at noon a series of children's games will be conducted under the direction of the city assessor's office and the recreation department.

Also at noon a community style picnic will begin and continue throughout the day.

Volunteer wins

$5,000 prize

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A Romulus school volunteer apparently has been rewarded for her good works with local children.

Wick Elementary School lunch room volunteer Valerie Flournoy reported that she and her family have won a $5,000 cash shopping spree, after purchasing breakfast last week at the Wayne Road McDonald's Restaurant.

Flournoy and her seven-year-old son, James, ordered the family's breakfast through the restaurant's speaker system and then picked it up at the drive-through window.

"As we were driving home," the mother revealed, "my son asked if he could pull off the little Monopoly game pieces. After he pulled the one off his hash brown, he yelled out 'Hey Mom, look at this!'"

Flournoy said at first she didn't think it was real. She took it back to McDonald's and a worker said "we've never had a big winner before. Don't lose it."

Now the Flournoy family has to go through the process of verification via a McDonald's Redemption Center.

"If it's cash great," Flournoy said. "If it's a shopping spree that's fine too. Shopping is one of my favorite pastimes."

Long term Romulus elementary school teacher Sharon Popek has announced she will retire at the end of the current school year.

Popek, who currently teaches a split second-third grade class at Wick Elementary School, had her retirement plans approved Monday night by the Romulus School Board.

When asked what she planned to do after retirement, Popek said, "Try to improve my golf game, do some volunteer work and spend more time with my grandchildren."

In her letter to Assistant Superintendent Dr. Terrel LeCesne, Popek said, "It's been my pleasure to teach in Romulus since September 1970. Previously I subbed in the district and my children attended school here for five Popek said she will take wonderful memories with her as she had the good fortune to work with many conscientious staff members and appreciative parents.

Circus support asked

Romulus residents were urged to support the Chamber of Commerce's circus ticket sales effort Monday night by former chamber president Mark Lewkowicz.

Lewkowicz, who was instrumental in bringing the Franzen Brothers Circus to Romulus twice before, told the City Council that the chamber makes more money from the advance tickets sold, than those purchased the day of the performances.

Two performances are planned for 4:30 and 7 p.m. on June 26, Lewkowicz said. Advance tickets cost only $5, while same day tickets cost $7.

Free petting zoo tickets soon will be passed out by the chamber, Lewkowicz said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

RECEIPT OF A CLOSURE PLAN FOR A HAZARDOUS WASTE MANAGEMENT FACILITY

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) and the United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) Region 5, hereby give notice that on November 21, 1994, Safety-Kleen submitted a closure plan for hazardous waste storage units, transfer units (paint waste shelters and return/fill station), and 2 underground storage tanks (UST) at its Romulus Service Center located at 35201 Crane Road, Romulus, Michigan. The closure plan includes a separate and complete closure plan for the transfer units. Safety-Kleen has used its hazardous waste storage facility to store containers of hazardous wastes, such as: paint waste, spent immersion cleaner, dry cleaning waste, spent parts cleaner, spent mineral spirits, spent mineral spirits sludge, and flammable hydrocarbons. In addition, Safety-Kleen has used its transfer units to store several hazardous waste codes. Instead of submitting an application for an operating license, Safety-Kleen plans to terminate activities at its Romulus Service Center and move its operations to a new facility in Romulus. The closure plans describe the procedures for decontaminating the container storage, transfer unit, and UST areas, the procedures for sampling and analyzing to evaluate the effectiveness of the decontamination, and the procedures for disposing of the wastes generated during closure.

To fulfill its obligation under Part 111 (Hazardous Waste Management) of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act (NREPA), 1994 PA 451, the MDNR must ensure that closure of currently regulated hazardous waste management units is performed in a manner that protects public health and the environment. The U.S. EPA, pursuant to the federal Hazardous and Solid Waste Amendments of 1984 (HSWA), must ensure that any releases of hazardous waste or hazardous waste constituents from current or past solid waste management units are cleaned up to the extent necessary to protect public health and environment. Solid waste management units may include landfills, surface impoundments (lagoons, ponds, pits), land farms, waste piles, tanks, container storage areas, disposal wells, wastewater treatment units, waste transfer stations, waste recycling operations, and any other activity that is, or ever was, used to manage solid waste (including liquid or contained gaseous waste).

The public is hereby encouraged to provide factual information concerning any known releases (date, type) of hazardous waste or hazardous waste constituents from this facility to the air, surface water, groundwater, or soils. Comments should be sent to the address printed below by June 15, 1995. The Safety-Kleen closure plan is available for inspection at the MDNR, Southeast Michigan District Office, located at 38980 Seven Mile Road, Livonia, Michigan (contact Dr. Ben Okwumabua at 313-953-0241); and at the reference desk of the Romulus Public Library located at 11121 S. Wayne in Romulus, Michigan (contact Ms. Diana Hazen at 313-941-7369). This closure plan is also available at the MDNR, Waste Management Division Office located on the first floor of the John A. Hannah Building, located at 608 West Allegan Street, Lansing, Michigan (contact Mr. Daniel Dailey at 517-335-6610). Copies of the closure plan may be obtained from the Waste Management Division for the cost of reproduction. Send your request and mailing address to Ms. Marcia Baldermann at the address below.

Construction begins

at Canton church site

By KRISTIN HONECKER
MCN Special Writer

April 30, 1995 proved to be quite an exciting Sunday for the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Canton.

The ground breaking ceremony attracted a congregation of more than 600 people along with many spectators to help mark the historical event.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack and his wife, State Sen. Loren Bennett and Clerk Terry Bennett and Bruce Patterson, County Commissioner from the 11th District were special guests at the celebration.

The church was formerly the Calvary Baptist Church, which relocated from its site in Wayne to the present Canton location in 1988. The current pastor is Dr. Weldon Spracklen and he has been with the church since 1966.

The church owns 18 acres of land on the corner of Cherry Hill and Sheldon Roads and are currently meeting in their Family Life Center. The new sanctuary will be constructed in a "fan type shape" with seating capacity of approximately 985.

Members of the congregation of the First Baptist Church of Canton participated in the ground breaking ceremonies for a new church, seating 985, on an 18-acre parcel at the corner of Cherry Hill and Sheldon roads. Before the congregation moved to Canton in 1988, the church was Calvary Baptist Church of Wayne. MCN Special Photo

in child safety program

By KRISTIN HONECKER
MCN Special Writer

The Oakwood Healthcare System Foundation has joined forces with the Plymouth-Canton community and school officials in order to better the safety of children.

Their main goal is to build a coalition dedicated to increasing safety helmet use by the children in the community.

Nearly 400,000 children, 14 and younger, are treated each year for bicycle related injuries in hospital emergency rooms across the United States and one-third of these children suffer head injuries. However, safety helmets reduce the risk of serious head injury by 85 percent!

"Keep Kids Safe!" strives to create exciting, ongoing programs that will educate parents, build awareness and encourage kids to wear helmets. The coalition's goal is to have the entire community work together to reduce the occurrence of the number one killer and health threat facing children ages 14 and under, preventable childhood injury.

Oakwood Healthcare System Foundation is in the process of teaming up with local retailers to offer a $10 discount coupon for a certified safety helmet. This will make helmets easier to acquire but the real success lies in parent encouragement, education and perception. These three aspects are what will make the safety helmet initiative a success.

Future of SMART bus service on May 23 ballot

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Western Wayne County senior citizens, handicapped residents and minimum-wage type workers are riding on the hope that voters will turn out May 23 in support of the SMART bus millage.

Voters in Romulus, Wayne, Westland and Inkster will be among those voting on the bus issue that would add 0.33 mills to local tax bills to continue and in some areas enhance local bus transportation opportunities.

According to Michael Dugan, acting director of the SMART bus operations, the 0.33 mills question, translates into an annual tax cost of $16.65 for homeowners of property valued at $100,000.

If such transportation is approved by voters SMART officials say a new (Dial-a-Ride) handicapped-elderly bus service would be opened in the Romulus area and a new Telegraph Road line would open with a route of Telegraph to Eureka and to the Southland Center in Taylor.

Beth Gibbons of SMART bus lines said 7,000 mostly low income workers use the buses to get to work and home now. If the bus line is continued and expanded, the buses will be able to reach work sites for 150,000 other job holders and 9,000 more employers.

Gibbons said that the Detroit Chamber of Commerce is pressing hard for the passage of the SMART millage, stating that the person who bags your groceries or collects your movie theater tickets probably got to his or her job via the bus route.

Fifty-nine percent of the bus ridership in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties is made up of employees going to work or coming home. Thirty-eight percent of those workers do not own cars and many do not have any other access to job situations, Gibbons explained.

In addition to many low-income workers who would lose their jobs if the SMART buses stop running, Gibbons explained, the bus lines would also have to terminate employment for 800 of its workers, including bus drivers and office help.

Some area towns such as Canton, Belleville, Van Buren and Sumpter have opted out of the millage vote, but Romulus city officials (who at first questioned the wisdom of such a local vote) changed their minds when SMART agreed to pay the $10,000 election costs and said other transportation possibilities would arise if the bus operations were widely approved.

Students warned not to drink and drive at prom

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

"All we ask is that you use those choices wisely. Try to think about what you are doing and try to be responsible."

Those words rang out in the Wayne Memorial High School auditorium last week as Wayne firefighters and police, Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) officials, Annapolis Hospital and the Palace Theatre Co. gathered to inform students not to drink and drive at the prom or anytime in their lives.

The event was coordinated by Wayne firefighter Ken Chapman.

"The program is broken down into two phases," said Wayne Fire Chief Mike O'Brien. "The first phase consists of three speakers including a police officer explaining the incarceration process, a medical professional explaining the effects of alcohol on the body's motor skills and a mother whose son was killed in an alcohol related incident."

Phase two involved a mock accident involving a group returning from a prom party, and a young family.

In the auditorium, Jenny Tomaszewski, MADD chapter administrator, drove the message home that if a person drinks and drives, an accident is bound to happen.

"Think of one person that you can't do without and then think of that one person wiped out," said Tomaszewski. "Life is not funny. Speaking as a mother who lost a child in a drunk driving accident, I know how devastating it can be."

Students were given an alcohol quick quiz which asked them to look over a series of questions. If they could answer yes to two or more of the questions, then that would mean they are developing or already have a problem with alcohol.

The questions included the following:

- Does drinking cause you to miss work or school?
- When you drink, do you feel more confident and less shy?
- Has your drinking affected other's opinions of your character?
- Have you drank to escape from home, work or school problems?

Students were also reminded that a blood alcohol level of .10 is considered legally drunk in Michigan. Above .50 is generally considered a lethal blood level.

Students were then taken outside to view a mock prom accident which appeared very realistic.

Chuck Stockwell has a dream. He would like to start one of the first charter schools in the state. He would like to do it in Wayne's Monroe Elementary, which is slated to be closed at the end of the current school year.

Mike's musings

Mike Wilcox

Chuck's dream, however, has hit a stumbling block in the form of the Wayne-Westland School District.

Currently principal at Monroe, Stockwell took the early buyout that was offered to Wayne-Westland personnel earlier this year. His ambition was not to retire, but instead, to start his own school.

A veteran of many public school systems, Stockwell felt he had a better way. His school would not be strapped with rules and regulations that modern day teachers must now deal with. His school would concentrate on teaching kids the basics rather than spending school time on district-wide politics.

"The mission for the Monroe Developmental Academy," explained Stockwell, "is simply to provide a basic elementary school education. We will guarantee that 80 percent of the students read and do math at grade level by the fourth grade." Currently, 40 percent of Monroe students meet that criteria.

The mission and overall game plan convinced Central Michigan University to extend a charter to Stockwell. That means Stockwell will receive the same per pupil revenues as the public school district (Wayne-Westland) does from the state. He now has the game plan, the financing, willing students and parents and many possible teachers. All he now needs is a location.

He's hoping Wayne-Westland will allow him to lease the school he is most familiar with, Monroe. Part of the reason he got involved in the charter school concept was because area parents demanded he do everything in his power to save Monroe. When that fight went down to defeat, they turned Stockwell on to the charter school concept. Many of the parents have worked nearly as aggressively as Stockwell to make Monroe a charter candidate.

Wayne-Westland Schools, however, aren't sure that they want to part with Monroe — at least for the purpose of a charter school. Some school board members feel a charter school would take revenue away from Wayne-Westland schools. They are not interested in competing with a charter school for kids.

That argument is understandable. Wayne-Westland, in the throes of its own financial inadequacies, does not want to give up a penny to another school. Allowing Stockwell to rent the former Monroe Elementary, although it would be a good source of rental income, would not, in the big picture, be of financial benefit to the school district.

Stockwell sees it differently. He sees himself utilizing and paying for many of the current services Wayne-Westland has to offer such as busing, insurance, food service, etc. Considering everything, he thinks the charter school could actually provide a decent source of income for Wayne-Westland.

Whether Stockwell is successful in realizing his dream or not, charter schools will be a thorn in the side of public schools for a good long time. This is the beginning, I predict, of a new educational phenomena. Charter schools will be popping up, here and there, in nearly all of Michigan's communities. Eventually public schools will need to figure out how to deal with them. I'm sure public school educators across the state are watching closely, as Wayne-Westland decides whether to cooperate with Stockwell or not.

And if they don't...Stockwell has other options. Part of his motivation is his daughter who has a brain tumor that has impaired her learning. He insists on being with her all day long, and had that luxury at Monroe. If he fails to cut a deal with Wayne-Westland, Stockwell promises his academy will locate elsewhere. You see, his daughter's health and education are far too important for Stockwell to entrust either to anyone else.

I gotta feeling that this is one dream that will become reality.

Is 'Debt Age' ending?

To the editor:

Is the great "age of debt" coming to an end? Is the Keynesian economic experiment destined to share the same fate as the socialist economic experiment? Answer: Probably. Consider this.

John Maynard Keynes was an English economics professor who - quite simply - was given the job of saving western capitalism in the 1930s.

In those days, people were sick and tired of the boom and bust of the business cycle. In Europe and America, the Great Depression had come to visit - and then decided to move in. Unemployment was way too high.

To many people, socialism was starting to look like the only way out. Capitalism needed some answers - Quick!

Enter Keynes. The era of "user friendly" capitalism had begun. Keynes asked - What if the economy were managed to achieve only full employment? And let all the other economic variables be damned. He concluded that the liberal use of debt and deficit spending (borrowing) by the government would keep the economic gears greased, and the "consumption" pump primed.

Guess what? It worked! (af-

ter a fashion). The capitalist Armageddon was postponed. In Russia, Stalin was really upset. Why? Because, we "cheated." He knew it. We knew it. But - all's fair - right? The future was sealed. From now on it would be - Bye, Bye, Gold Standard. Hello, paper money.

But - there were doubters. Keynes was often asked about the long run consequences of all this debt and deficit spending. His clever answer? "In the long run we're all dead."

Again, of course, he was right. Keynes died in 1946.

If Keynes has wanted to be really clever and prescient he might have said - "In the long run it's - 1995!"

Today, debt has run amuck. It dominates every level of our economic thinking in a way that would have been impossible to conceive of in the 1920s and earlier. Debt gave capitalism a way to seemingly - have its cake and eat it too. Of course, it was all an illusion, because persistent debt destroys the value of money. But - in a pinch, even an illusion will do.

The current problem before us is - How to control the soaring and money destroying debt and still keep the high levels of employment and consumption to which we have become accustomed. The person solving this riddle has a Nobel Prize in economics waiting for them. In the mean time, we wait and muddle through - year after year after year. Waiting for what? A new Keynes! A new illusion!

Traffic is hazard

To the editor:

Due to the increased traffic caused by the many homes being built in the Canton Ctr. Rd. area, driving is much more hazardous. The Meijer's exit off Canton Center Road is especially dangerous. There are accidents there much too often. On Sunday alone there were at least three we heard of, ours was one of them.

First, the speed limit should be lowered back to 45 miles. Secondly, there should be a No Left Turn sign there. Best of all, there should be a Light placed there. The speed and heavy traffic makes it difficult to get out of that exit. The police see this. How many more accidents must there be before something is done.

Meijers could chip in, but Canton Tns. has plenty of money to beautify Ford Rd. and put in an over abundance of street lights. For years Canton Ctr. Rd. was so

Congresswoman tells position

To the editor:

I know it makes a better story to suggest in your March 30 Eyewitness edition that I was somehow inconsistent in my desire for bi-partisan handling of balancing the budget and then in my comments about the upcoming agenda of the 104th Congress, but in fact you do me, and your readers, a disservice.

By suggesting, without quotes, that I deprecated issues such as flag burning, school prayer, and assault weapons, or characterized them as "Republican" completely distorts my statement, which was that upcoming issues are difficult ones which will cause controversy between the parties, within the parties, and across the nation.

I don't think even a casual observer of the body politic would disagree.

Sound-Off 729-4006

Callers speak up on family problems, council meetings, jobs

During the past week, callers to the Sound-Off 729-4006 line have expressed their opinions on many issues.

Individuals who wish to leave a message on any subject of general interest may call 729-4006 between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. weekdays and any time on the weekends.

We request that callers refrain from personal attacks and profanity.

These were the calls received last week:

I have watched the Romulus City Council meetings numerous times, watching the chairman, the mayor pro-tem. It is so irrelevant what he talks about and without him the meetings would be shorter. Also, I commend the guy who spoke up against the lady this past week.

My niece makes me sick, along with everyone else in the family. Having her mother put in jail because she said my sister slapped her in the face. My sister has not hit her kids in years. Plus, her mother has numerous medical problems. That jail is a filthy pigsty not fit for anyone to be in. I cannot believe that she can do something like that to her mother. Our mother has been gone for 20 years, and we still miss her. You had better wake up and tell the truth, young lady. Something could happen to your mother and you would regret it for the rest of your life.

I am calling about the article titled, "Take your job offer and shove it!" in the Eyewitness. It was concerning the topic of how high school graduates are not prepared for jobs. How do you think they are going to be prepared for jobs when all they got on their minds is driving cars, smoking cigarettes, wearing baseball caps backwards and beepers. That's why they can't learn anything. I have known for a long time that we are not getting a lot of bang for the buck in Westland.

Editor's note: Readers are invited to comment on the following questions either by a letter to the editor or by calling 729-4006:

Do you support the concept of charter schools? Would you like to see one established in a local district?

Should the state approve gambling in local cities - Romulus, Inkster or downtown Detroit?

Do you believe residents of Western Wayne County should be allowed to vote for Recorder's Court judges whose jurisdiction includes Western Wayne County?

Do you favor stricter or more liberal gun control laws?

How high a tax will smokers pay?

As I glanced through one of the daily newspapers this week, I noticed an article which stated that Michigan is losing millions of potential tax dollars because smokers are purchasing cigarettes from nearby states where the tax burden is much lower.

Since the state tax rose from 25 cents to 75 cents per pack, the smuggling of cigarettes has become a lucrative business, bringing up to $100,000 profit for a truckload of out-of-state cigarettes.

On a smaller scale, individuals are including purchases of several cartons of their favorite brands when they make short trips to nearby states.

It is not surprising to me that this is happening. Any time a large tax levy is placed on a popular item, the potential for tax evasion accompanies it, especially when the item is available with less taxes in nearby Ohio or Indiana.

The public will only pay a certain level of taxes, and when they feel that the burden is too great, they will find a way to evade it. Obviously, this is being done in Michigan.

Because cigarette smoking has become "politically incorrect," tobacco has become an easy target for tax hikes. Not only can the legislators sweep a few extra millions into the state coffers by hiking tobacco taxes, but, at the same time, they can tell us that it for our own good - they are helping to save us from potential illnesses and also are putting the tax dollars into education.

Perhaps, a lower cigarette tax would bring in more revenue.

Note that, please, legislators.

Educator explains whole-language concept

By Dr. Terrel LeCesne
Guest columnist

Like many school districts throughout the country, Romulus schools changed from the traditional methods of teaching reading and writing to a whole-language approach.

Like anything new or different, whole-language instruction is both exciting and controversial. This approach is based on a belief that children best learn to read and write in the same way that they learned to speak from whole to part. Simply put, they learn language as a whole process using reading, writing, and oral language skills, and then, gradually they refine the different skills that make up the language process. The instructional focus is primarily on language meaning, rather than specific skills.

So, with the whole-language approach, less emphasis is placed on basic skills. Instead, a whole-language teacher often uses a wide variety of instructional materials, such as big and little books, magazines, and spoken and visual material. In the whole-language classroom, children are the focus. Students are urged to actively participate in the learning process by focusing their reading and writing on subjects that interest them. In this approach, there is less or no reliance on the commonly used basal reading textbooks - texts that include stories designed around specific skills.

In contrast, the more traditional skills-based approaches to beginning reading and writing instructions are based on the premise that young children learn to read and write best when taught specific skills in controlled, sequential steps. In this approach, the basal reading textbooks like the Ginn Readers are used; therein lies the controversy.

Some commonly used whole-language instructional strategies include invented spelling, which encourages students to begin writing immediately, even if they do not know the correct spelling of all the words they write. In basal texts, emphasis is placed on correct spelling of all the words they write. In basal text, emphasis is placed on correct spelling and pronunciation from the beginning. Activities in whole-language classrooms are often socially oriented and interactive, and many projects feature collaborative reading and writing, involving students working together, as opposed to individually, as is often the case in basal-text classrooms. Journal-writing is encouraged so that students can respond to a piece of literature that they have read or anything else that interests them.

Most whole-language advocates believe that phonics or formal work analysis instruction is not only unnecessary but harmful because it forces a child to concentrate on the sounds and symbols of the language, and not on the meaning of the text. No so, here in Romulus. We believe that phonetic skills development is a very important part of language instruction. So, rather than ignore phonics instruction, we put it in proper perspective. In our schools, phonics and other language-arts skills are primarily taught in the Computer Assisted Instruction Classroom (CAIC) with the computer-driven Integrated Learning Systems. Each day, students are scheduled into the CAIC for their basic skills instruction in both language arts and mathematics.

In conclusion, while we have moved to a whole-language approach to regarding instruction - from whole to part - we will continue to place an equal emphasis on basic skills development. The language processes of reading, writing, speaking, and listening are integrated in the whole-language instruction with an emphasis on meaning and with direct word-analysis skills, such as phonics, taught as needed in the learning process.

As parents, you are encouraged to talk to your child's teacher and the principal to find out more about whole language so that you, too, will have a better understanding of what it is and how you can assist at home.

Airport expansion planned, with or without Northwest

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Detroit Metro Airport will break ground for a new world class international terminal, with or without Northwest Airlines financial support.

That is the current vow of Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara.

McNamara then was quoted as saying "Northwest Airlines will either be a partner or a tenant!"

For several years now the politically energetic county executive has set his sights on a major new international terminal and is hoping that he can pull Northwest financial power into the effort.

But recently expressed Northwest executive opinions have been much more conservative than the $450 million price tag ballyhooed by McNamara.

Both McNamara and Northwest agree a new terminal is in the best interest of Detroit Metro's future, but the pair's vision of the cost and style of that terminal seem to be light years apart.

County officials said they will decide in July which option will be followed on terminal construction. McNamara himself admits it will be greatly downscaled if Northwest funds are not involved.

Job seekers report satisfaction

More than 74 percent of statewide residents who responded to a recent Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) survey revealed they were pleased with the services they received while seeking jobs.

MESC Job Service provides screening, matching and referral of job seekers to employers, who have job openings. Last year it was reported that 108,558 registered job seekers found jobs through MESC.

Agency Director R. Robert Edwards said the heavy majority of persons served by MESC thought the staff was courteous, helpful and well-informed.

At the same time, Edwards said the survey feedback showed the job seekers were appreciative of the computerized job listings.

Seniors become the jury at 29th District Court

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

It was a day for seniors to decide the fate of a domestic violence case in the 29th District Court before Judge Carolyn Archbold.

Seniors in the Golden Hour Club in Wayne gathered May 12 at the court for a day filled with informational sessions on various legal procedures.

The 5th annual Senior Law Day included a workshop in the morning, lunch and a mock trial in the afternoon.

"This year marks the 38th Annual Nationwide Observance of Law Day, and the Congress of the U.S. and the president of official proclamation have set aside May 1 as a special day for recognition of the place of law in American life," said Archbold.

The event was organized by Archbold and 29th District Court officials. Various attorneys offered their services for the day, according to Barbara Killingbeck, 29th District court administrator.

"Attorney Richard Weinberg spoke on patient advocacy and attorney Mark Maironis spoke on senior legal concerns in the morning workshops," said Killingbeck. "Lt. Dan Randall from the Wayne Police Department and officer Bruce Wolfgram offered personal safety tips to the seniors."

At the mock trial prosecutor Dan Pietrella and defense attorney Brian Oakley offered their services to enact a life-like trial on domestic violence.

Various Wayne city officials offered to portray a character in the mock trial. Councilwoman Donna McEachern acted as "Donna Mae", the alleged ex-girlfriend of Councilman Al Haidous who took on the character role of "Al Hae".

Audrey Tucker, director of Wayne Senior Services, portrayed the next door neighbor of Donna Mae. The seniors became the jury.

The Senior Law Day in Wayne has been applauded by residents, council members, police and legislative officials.

Tahoe includes luxury features, rugged performance

By JUSTIN WILCOX
MCN Automotive Writer

If you want the go-anywhere ability of a Hummer without the limo-like size, the freshly designed Chevrolet Tahoe is the best choice available under thirty thousand dollars.

The first thing that you will notice about the Tahoe is that it towers above everything else on the road, short of a semi-truck.

Without trying to sound sexist, the 1995 Tahoe is a manly truck, that can intimidate traffic for miles around. The word "manly" typically is used to describe something very large and brutish. This is a great feature of the car if you are six-feet tall.

For me, I miss out by about four inches. Seeing that the average female is my height, this truck would be very difficult for ingress and egress. Loading the rear of the vehicle involves a rather strange maneuver. Place the cargo on the tailgate, then jump up on the tailgate. While on your knees, you slide the cargo into position. It's not as easy as it sounds.

The Tahoe is a genuine pioneer of the sport-utility field. It is the first truck to adopt car-like characteristics. Born in the late 1960s with a Blazer nameplate, the Tahoe badge arrived with a complete overhaul of this product in 1992. For 1995, the news is a fresh interior and the addition of a four-door body style.

Practically every inch of the Tahoe's interior benefits from up-to-the-minute thinking. There's an air bag for the driver. An interlock mechanism prevents shifting the automatic transmission out of the park position unless the driver's foot is depressing the brake pedal.

The instrument panel is a blend of aesthetics, utility and convenience. The instrument cluster contains a neat array of white on black analog gauges accented with red-orange needles as critical zone markings. The sound system and heating and air conditioning controls are centrally located within an easy reach of the front passengers.

All switches are ergonomically designed with a high quality feel. Dual cup holders slide out of a neat storage compartment positioned at the center of the dash. The low mounted ashtray offers two electrical accessory outlets.

As before, two engines are available on the Tahoe, a 5.7 liter V-6 and a 6.5 liter turbo diesel V-8. Fitted with an all-new interior, the 1995 Tahoe represents an enviable mix of car comforts with tough truck mobility and towing ability.

The Tahoe has a base price of $22,000, loaded with options, my tester had a price of $29,956. For the extra seven grand, I received leather interior, remote keyless entry, air conditioning, remote mirrors, AM/FM with cassette and power windows and locks.

Thirty thousand dollars for a truck? Well, what can I say? If you have a boat or trailer with a couple of kids and a dog, this should be your vehicle. It offers luxury appointments while still being able to pull the stumps out of your yard. If I had to find one fault with the Tahoe, it would be the gas mileage. It is rated at 12 mpg in the city and 15 mpg on the highway.

Gentlemen and ladies, have your gas cards ready!

Preps ready for run for regional track glory

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

If they want to join an elite club that will compete for state glory, local prep track and field stars will have to shine Friday at their regionals.

On Friday, most local Class A men and women's teams will head for Redford Union to compete in the regional competition, doorway to the state championships.

At the same time, local Class B schools will be competing at the regionals hosted by Ypsilanti Lincoln.

The Class B state championships will be conducted in Midland, while the Class A finals will be staged at Saginaw High School.

Westland John Glenn coach Jess Shough believes the road to the finals will be tough, but also is convinced his Rockets will be represented in Saginaw.

"You have some excellent teams gathering at R.U., including some out of Detroit," Shough stressed. "The competition is going to be tough over there, however, I feel we will have some athletes who will survive their regional tests."

Among local teams that will compete at Redford Union are: Belleville, Romulus, Plymouth-Salem, Plymouth-Canton, Wayne Memorial, and Glenn. Robichaud is the only "B" team in the area. Coaches Francis McCauley and Shelby Johnson will take the Bulldogs to Ypsilanti Lincoln.

Teams that will also make a run for the regional title at R.U. include the two Ann Arbor high schools - Pioneer and Huron, traditionally strong track and field schools.

All of the Livonia schools as well as the three Dearborn high schools also will be represented at the Redford Union regional.

An athlete must finish first or second in an event or match a standard set up by the Michigan High School Athletic Association in order to qualify for the state finals.

Wayne Memorial's Floyd Carter says he has a small cadre of blue chippers who should make it out of the regional competition. That cadre will be led by hurdler Kevin Riley, who will be in the midst of the hunt for the 110-and-300-meter hurdle titles.

The veteran coach says that his mile relay team which includes Riley, Jarin Bradley, Jason Blanks and Richard Johnson also have a chance to qualify.

Belleville coach George Devore said that Nate Lewis, in the broad jump, along with Erik Szyndlar and Machia Coats in the high jump have an excellent shot at qualifying along with Kevin Robinson (200- meters), Greg Whitmore (hurdlers) and distance runner Brian Mockeridge.

"These kids have legitimate shots of getting in," Devore added.

Tigers bury league leader

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Mike Kinzel's two-run homer in the bottom of the fourth lifted Belleville to a 9-0 victory over league-leading Taylor Center and blurred the Mega Conference Red Division title picture.

Although Taylor Center and Monroe remain atop of the conference standings as the week got underway, Belleville, with a 6-3 record, along with Lincoln Park, also appear to be very much alive in the race.

Belleville had an opportunity to close the gap last Monday, however, coach John Bertz allowed Monroe to slip from their clutches, 5-3, as the Tigers helped in their own demise by committing five errors.

Kinzel and Belleville starter Rodney Komaromi held Taylor Center to five hits as they combined for the shut-out. Komaromi, who appeared to be struggling most of the first three innings he was on the mound, got out of trouble thanks to a couple of defensive gems and a double play.

He was removed in the third for Kinzel, who continued to gather goose eggs the rest of way and got credit for the victory.

Kinzel helped the Tigers' cause with a homer. He also tripled and drove in three runs.

Davenport chipped in with a pair of singles and two RBIs.

Four errors proved costly for Belleville against Monroe, which turned the miscues into the 5-3 victory.

Over the weekend, the Tigers split a doubleheader with Ann Arbor Huron. Belleville won the opener 7-5 behind Jacob Reeder's five-hit pitching. He fanned two and also walked four.

Loser Scotty Oakes also gave up nine hits, three to Jason Vogelsberg, who collected two singles and a double and also accounted for two runs batted in. Teammate Russell Harris laced two singles.

In the nightcap, Huron came back and brought the Tigers back to earth. The River Rats pounded losing pitcher J.P. Bostic for seven hits in a 11-4 ball game.

Sophomore Joe Davenport came up with his first homer of the campaign. Davenport hammered a fifth inning, leadoff four-bagger down the right field line for one of eight Tiger hits.

Belleville played their first-ever under-the-lights game Monday night, clashing with Garden City at Municipal Park.

On Wednesday, coach Bertz and the Tigers took on Lincoln Park. They will return to the home field on Saturday to play a double-header with Westland John Glenn.

Wayne covets track crown

Although they have two losses tacked to their conference record - the latest a 78-63 setback at the hands of undefeated Monroe - no one is counting Wayne Memorial out of the Mega Conference Red Division title race.

The championship will be decided on Tuesday at Monroe High School.

Wayne coach Floyd Carter said he believes that his Zebras will play a key role in determining who the next conference champ will be, and he definitely isn't counting out his own team.

"We were a few steps away from beating Belleville and Monroe," the veteran Wayne coach noted. "And I believe that we have a good shot at the title."

Carter said his team lacks distance runners and a pole vaulter and the voids create problems.

"Because we have to spot our opponents points in those events. Still, we manage to come back and make a meet of it," Carter added.

Carter also noted that at the conference championships teams which get solid performances from their relay teams and have a couple of good efforts from individuals could wind up among the leaders.

Salem, Glenn rematch may decide title

It's one of those sorrow or glory games that counts for championships.

When Westland John Glenn and coach Norm Hoenes hosts Plymouth Salem today, the winner will definitely walk off the diamond with the divisional title rights and the right to represent the division in the championship Western Lakes championship game.

The first time around, it took Salem eight innings, but the Rocks managed to carve out a 1-0 victory over the Rockets, who have not forgotten the heartbreaker.

Hoenes, in his final year as Glenn's skipper - he has announced his retirement effective at the end of the current school year - said he sees the rematch as another "good one."

"They (Salem) have another excellent team," Hoenes said. "They are one-game (7-1) up on us, and if we can get by Walled Lake Central, everything will ride on Thursday's game."

Glenn went into the contest earlier this week against Central sporting a 6-2 record. The Westlanders stayed in contention with an impressive 3-0 victory over North Farmington on Friday as winning pitcher Chris Turner, who got some help from Jerry Farrar, picked up the win.

Turner scattered three hits, fanned four and walked one before he tired and gave way to Farrar, who finished up.

With a 1-0 lead going into the bottom of the fifth, the Rockets put a pair of insurance runs on the scoreboard thanks to back-to-back singles from Tim Reeves and Trevor Davey. Reeves scored on a wild pitch, then Glenn catcher Nick James came through with a single to left, scoring Davey from third.

Turner also aided his own cause with two of the Rockets eight hits.

Turner and Farrar combined to give the Westlanders a sweep over Livonia Stevenson earlier in the week. Turner collected a 7-2 triumph over the Spartans to boost his record to 5-1. Then, Farrar came back in the nightcap and claimed a 6-1 victory.

However, the Glenn starter needed help from Tye Golden who came in in the fifth and faced a no-out bases-loaded situation and struck out the first two batters he faced and got the third out on a harmless infield pop-up.

Robichaud zeroes in on track title

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Sports Editor

Robichaud, the heir-apparent to defending champ Inkster High's track crown, continued to dominate the Suburban Athletic Conference women's track & field circuit.

Undefeated in four SAC meets and coming off of an excellent tour in Detroit where coach Francis McCauley's Bulldogs finished sixth with 34 points at the prestigious Superintendent's Classic, Robichaud is one victory away from a perfect SAC dual meet season.

Standing between perfection and the title is Willow Run, a team that the Dearborn Heights thinclads were scheduled to meet earlier this week. However, the Bulldogs also will have to prove themselves at the annual SAC Championships hosted by Oak Park later this month.

This will be Oak Park's final appearance in the SAC. The Redskins have joined the Oakland County Mega Conference.

"I felt we performed well," said McCauley, a veteran of 25 track seasons at Robichaud. "We were the only Class B team among a field loaded with Class A talent."

The invitational is named for Detroit Superintendent David Snead, who was on hand to present the winning trophy to Cass Tech. No, attorney Sharon McPhail, who is engaged to marry Snead later this year, was not in attendance.

Robichaud picked up a second place trophy in the high jump competition thanks to Andrea McGrew who cleared 5'0". She also finished with third-place trophies in the 100-meter (15.6) and 300-meter (46.7) hurdles.

McCauley's 1,600-meter relay team of Tamika Craig, Loria Alverson, Juanita McGrew and Andrea McGrew also won a silver trophy, breaking the school record for the event for the third time this year. The new record is 4:07.

McGrew, Craig, Deanna Kulman and Nova Schollenberger provided their team with a fifth-place finish in the 3,200-meter run. They were clocked in 10:53.

Kulman came back and ran a 6:01 to place fifth in the individual mile event.

The meet was staged at Dr. Martin Luther King High School on Saturday.

School hopes to walk for funds to upgrade playground

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKE
MCN Staff Writer

A Fun Mile/Family Night organized by the Parent Teacher Association (PTA) of Schweitzer School is planned for May 19 to help raise money to upgrade and purchase new playground equipment.

The organization hopes the first annual walk/run will involve the staff, students, and parents of the school walking to raise money for the refurbishment of the playground.

Liz Zamensky, parent volunteer, has been soliciting businesses in the area for donations the group plans to reward to the participants. Over 200 prizes will be distributed to the children and families involved in the fun night. Organizers are hoping the community shows an interest in the event and participates as well. "We are asking for pledge donations in any amount and wish to invite the public to participate. There may be plans in the future to make this a community wide event if our first is successful," said Zamensky.

The idea originated in the Chelsea School District where another parent/teacher organization raised almost $19,000 to upgrade the playground equipment at an elementary school.

Schweitzer organizers are hoping to raise at least $6,000 through the fun walk/run.

Registration for the event will begin at Schweitzer Elementary in Westland at 5:45 p.m. A magician, games, prizes and refreshments will be provided by the PTA before and after the walk. A police escort will lead the participants through the neighborhood of Schweitzer at 6:30 p.m. starting in the parking lot of Schweitzer and heading up Treadwell toward Palmer, ending the walk at Schweitzer, 2601 Treadwell.

In an effort to encourage students to participate a pep rally was held May 10 for the students and staff of Schweitzer. Former 11th District Wayne County Commissioner and parent volunteer Bryan Amann rallied students to get involved with the help of volunteer John Areeda.

If you wish to participate in the fun walk/run or make a donation, call Schweitzer Elementary at 595-2625.

Good Connection

Parents develop good connection with local preschoolers

Parents of preschoolers in five Wayne County School Districts are finding effective ways to prepare their children for schools - and the results have been gratifying to parents and teachers alike.

The Parent Connector program provides parents of preschoolers in the Inkster, Westwood, Van Buren, Ecorse and River Rouge school districts with free, in-home help to prepare their children for school.

For example, Ruby Seifuddin's son, Kareem, 4, was too shy to be comfortable going to school, but now he's a happy outgoing 5-year-old finishing kindergarten. His mother credits the program with the changes in Kareem and his success this year in the Baylor/Woodson kindergarten in Inkster.

Pat Ammon, a 25-year veteran teacher, has seen children change and grow with help from the Parent Connecter program. She teaches kindergarten at Thorne Primary in the Westwood School District.

Through the program, a group of parents who have had successful parenting experiences serve as "parent connectors" providing biweekly home visits with parents of preschool and kindergarten youngsters. During these one-hour sessions, the parent connectors demonstrate learning activities to help prepare children for school.

The program focuses on giving parents the skills they need to help their children and complements what Ammon is doing in her kindergarten classroom. The parent connectors play a crucial role in helping other parents understand that parent involvement makes a big difference for children.

In addition to the home visits, parents receive free materials and ideas for follow-up activities to reinforce learning. The program also provides free family field trips, classes for parents and special connections with the school.

Seifuddin noted that her son gets along better with other children and was better prepared for kindergarten because of the program.

Pat Ammon also has seen a difference in parents who participate in the program.

"When parents feel more confident, children's attitudes change," Ammon said. "My attitude has always been 'Come in and see what we're doing and then go and do these things at home.'"

The Parent Connector is operated by Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency and funded by the Detroit Edison Foundation.

Information is available by contacting Lorraine Rauen, parent coordinator, 397-4134.

Kelly opposes revenue sharing cuts for cities

State Rep. Tom Kelly (D-Wayne) co-sponsored House Joint Resolution "O" calling for a constitutional amendment to prevent future state revenue sharing payments to counties, cities and townships from being cut.

"Congress has been cutting federal services and dollars over the years and passing the buck to states," said Kelly.

"Gov. John Engler has been doing the same to local government by reducing state revenue sharing payments."

Revenue sharing of the sales tax is currently required under the state constitution.

Although current state laws covering the Single Business Tax and income tax also include provisions mandating that revenue be shared with cities, villages and townships, these are not presently guaranteed under the constitution, according to Kelly.

In his proposed 1995-96 budget, Engler is seeking to change the state revenue sharing formula in order to cut $81 million intended for local units of government.

According to Kelly, revenue sharing has been reduced.

Hanneford dazzles audiences with daring acts

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

Children of all ages will soon be cheering and clapping as a parade of circus stars arrives at The Palace for 10 unforgettable performances.

The American Greetings/Perry Drugs Royal Hanneford Circus takes center stage at The Palace Theatre May 24-28.

Singing ringhostess, Charlie Hackett, sets the tone for the wide variety of breath-taking stunts, death-defying daredevils, and lovable clowns currently in the circus lineup.

Nellie Hanneford will display her versatility, first showing off her horse training talents with her Liberty horses and then heading above ground for an aerial extravaganza.

Dora Bautista and the rest of the family will make their first appearance at The Palace dazzling audiences with their amazing endurance in balance and contortionism.

Others making their debut include: Dana Kaseeva with her unique hula-hoop act, The Cacaceres Flying Trapeze Act, The Nock Family Sway Poles and Gaylord Maynard and Chief Bear Paw, America's funnies comedy duo since Abbott and Costello.

The Royal Hanneford Circus will end with a bang

Jacob Barreda elephants

when Rebecca Smith is shot out of a cannon at the end of each performance.

The Wheel of Destiny
Thrilling stunts can be the most important ingredient when it comes to a travelling circus.

Performers hanging high in the rafters without any type of safety apparatus reaffirming their confidence as well as no safety net below to make up for any mistakes is a sight most expect to see in the three rings.

The Wheel of Destiny presented by the Royal Hanneford Circus is such a sight.

From beginning to end, this act builds excitement upon excitement with perilous feats as the wheel accelerates to a spine-tingling speed.

The audience will clap faster and faster with every revolution, taunting the artists to race even faster.

It is just the right amount of raw human courage blending with thrilling anticipation.

The Olates Dog Act
Just as the old saying goes, "The worst spot on the bill is following the dog act," the Olates Dog Act is in every sense of the word, a tough act to follow.

The act is truly unique and, although different in concept, offers the same first quality and show-stopper appeal.

Tickets are now on sale for this outstanding exhibition. Showtimes for the Royal Hanneford Circus are as follows: 7 p.m. May 24; 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. May 25; 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. May 26; 11 a.m., 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. May 27; and 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. May 28.

For ticket prices call 810-377-0100 or 810-645-6666.

Teen shares thrills of being a circul celebrity

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

Most of us at one time or another have dreamt about being in the circus whether it be hanging from a rope by our teeth or balancing on a high wire.

For Dora Bautista, however, she can proudly say that she not only is a member of the Royal Hanneford Circus but was actually born into the act.

The 16-year-old is a contortionist with The Bautista Family performers.

"I was born in the circus," Bautista said. "My father has been with the circus all of his life. I'm a fifth generation circus performer in my family."

Bautista began practicing her unusual twists and turns since she was five years old. It wasn't until she turned 8, however, that she made her debut before a circus crowd of more than 500 people.

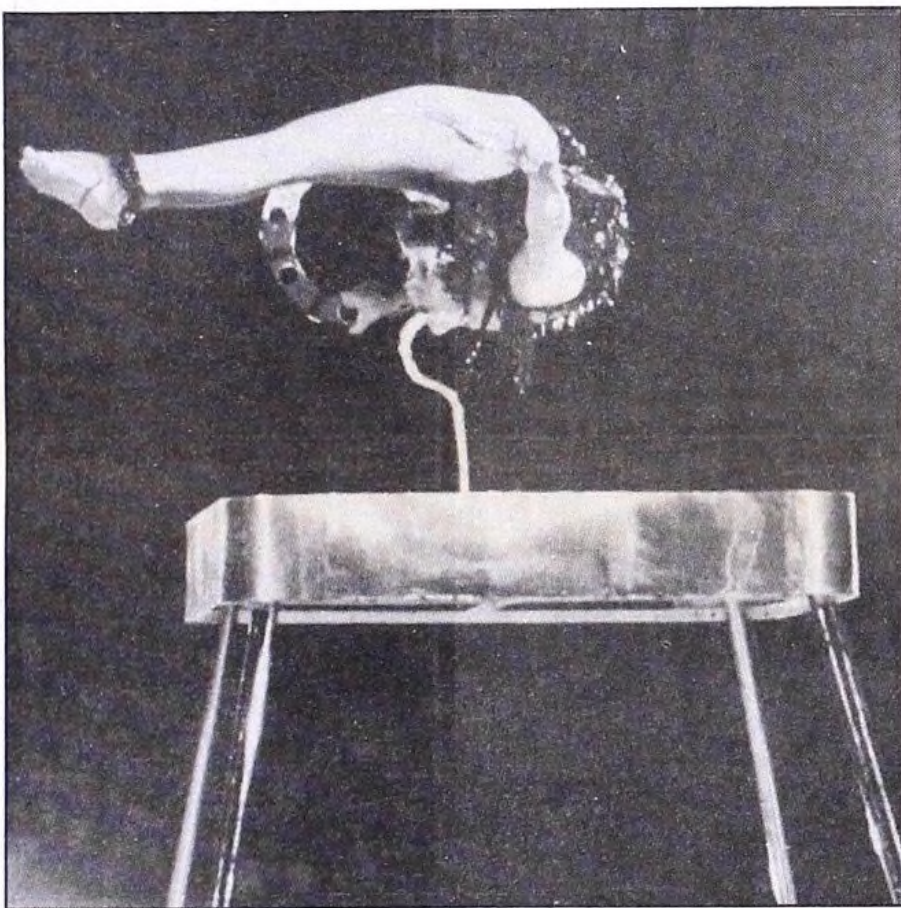

"I wasn't at all nervous," said Bautista. "This is something I have always enjoyed and have been around for so long."

Bautista is one of the best contortionist in the business. Incredibly limber, she can bend and twist her body in amazing ways.

"I practiced with my dad a lot," Bautista said. "I started with the basics, back bends, and then I started with more difficult moves."

This talented performer is considered an artist in motion by many audiences who have been dazzled by her act.

"Most anyone can be a con-

Dora Bautista

tortionist," said Bautista. "But, you can't be very overweight, and you do have to be a bit flexible."

What's one of her more difficult moves? She said she can bend backwards with her head between her legs and can twirl a hula hoop on each hand.

Being a circus performer means traveling to many unknown cities and countries. The furthest the teen has ventured is to Newfoundland in Canada.

The road performances require Bautista to alter her school attendance. The South Carolina native, however, said she makes up for her studies through the mail.

"I have correspondence with my school through the mail," said Bautista. "I do spend time in the classroom,"

Click, click International fashion photographer shares secret to success in industry

Some photographers may measure success by the number of magazine covers they have to their credit or rolls of film shot, for international fashion photographer Emin Kadi, success means working a 17 hour day and never feeling like he even went to work.

Kadi, 33, has been a fashion photographer for the last four years, finding a natural sense of know-how behind the lens of a camera.

"I stumbled upon something I love to do and it doesn't feel like work," said Kadi.

The young photographer's history reads like a do-it-yourself book. Kadi started out an architecture student on a tennis scholarship attending college after graduation. Following an injury to his hand, ending his hopes of being a serious player, he took the advice of a girlfriend who suggested he try modeling.

"For the first year I said no until I met a guy at an advertising agency that said I should put some photo's together and he'd find work for me," said Kadi.

For the next eight years Kadi was involved with agencies in New York, Chicago and overseas modeling in shows, magazines and doing shoots all over the world finding a great deal of success in the states as well as abroad in South Africa. As time would tell though the ways of the model got old and Kadi was in search of something else to do.

"I felt like I did all I could do and had gone as far as I could at that time," Kadi said.

The frustrations that follows a lot of male models include lower pay scales in relation to their female counterparts.

"I did a big show overseas and made about $1,500, the female model walking with me at a showing of men's fashions made close to $7,000 for the same work."

Feeling satisfied with the work he had done and disappointed with the ways of the industry Kadi turned to acting, doing about 30 commercials in total. Finally he returned home to Westland to relax and get away from what he thought he grew tired of.

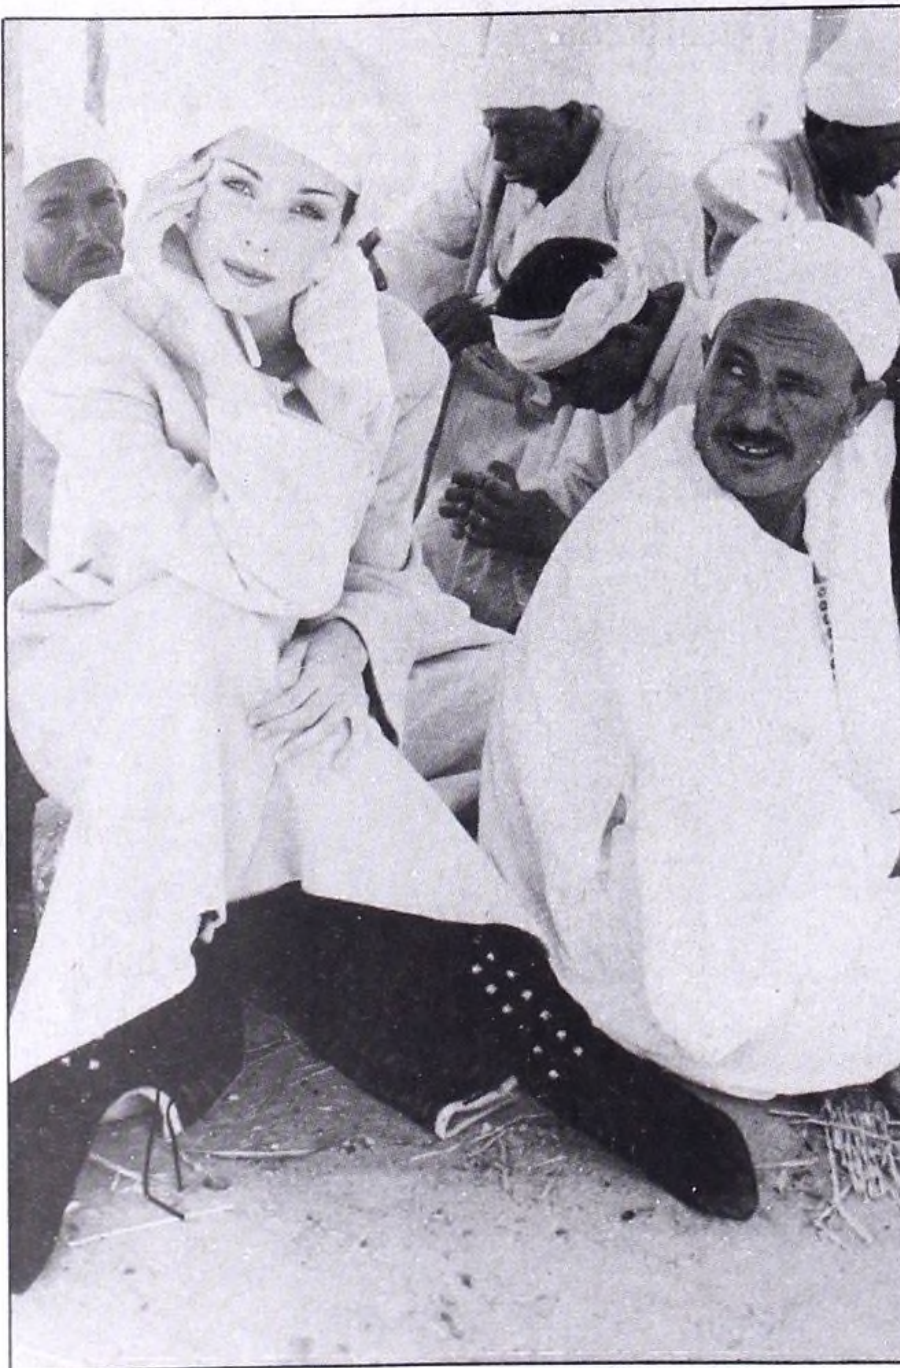

"I took a waiter job for about four days, then I realized I had to keep working in the business so I began to book talent for a modeling agency," said Kadi.

The agency job required him to book and groom talent and to send them overseas for jobs he found through his own foreign connections. Kadi tells of an afternoon when the agencies best model couldn't be shot because there was a problem with the camera and another photographer couldn't be reached.

"I hated what I was doing because I became everybody's mother and father. The model came crying to me about not being able to be shot so I said, 'I don't know what I'm doing but I'll shoot you', and that was it," said Kadi.

Kadi's first roll of film went off to New York with the model and suddenly more than 20 agencies had bookings with her following the shoot with Kadi. The agency he was working for suggested he start shooting instead of booking and as he sees it the rest is history.

Over the last four years Kadi has shot more than 1000 models with a portfolio that looks like a travel guide to the most exotic locations with the most beautiful women. "I've been all over the world including Vienna, Milan, Paris, Egypt, Greece and Switzerland. I found Greece to have the best lighting, Egypt is the best location to shoot and South Africa because you can drive 20 miles in any direction and get a different kind of feel from the landscape," said Kadi.

At home in his Westland studio Kadi finds the work never-ending. Busy preparing for a shoot with a model he discovered locally, he finds solace in being in control, making behind the camera decisions as well as the styling, make-up and clothing judgments.

"Bring out the color of her eyes more," says Kadi to Jessica Beaton his make-up artist in training.

"I like control. I do for the models what I wanted done for me, putting myself in their shoes," said Kadi.

Being aware of the kind of raw talent he possesses Kadi uses his friend and local stylist Jeffrey Beaton on all of his local work. While on a three-month shoot for Elite in Paris, one of the largest agencies in the world, Kadi plans to fly Beaton out to work with him acknowledging his friends level of expertise.

"I think he's one of the best stylists in the country," said Kadi.

The local photographers works are featured at Beaton's salon in Birmingham, Jeffrey Beaton and Colors. "The whole salon is a gallery of Emin's work. We're currently adding some of his newest photo's to the walls of the salon," said Beaton. The two agree each has a passion for their own work that they not only appreciate in each other but understand. "We both have the vision and expectations it takes to be successful," said Kadi.

Kadi admits success has been hard work. "I sometimes feel like I've opened up a can of worms I can't close," said Kadi.

Kadi will have a collection of his work on display at the Detroit Institute of Arts from mid-June through July 16. Currently working in Paris, the young photographer aspires to work for all of the big name fashion magazines in the years to come.

Multi-talented with a desire to control, Kadi is learning all aspects of his profession including production, lay-out and design as well as growing as a photographer. "While working in Paris I'll be shooting as a contributing editor for Detroit Monthly and sending my work back to the states for them to use," said Kadi excited about each new endeavor.

For now Kadi will spend the next three-months working abroad with some of the biggest names in fashion photography working towards his dream. "I swear I don't know what I'm doing - it just comes naturally," said Kadi.
